

William Russell Nowicki

Fine Artist ~ Illustrator ~ Graphic Designer

William is a Professional Fine Artist and Illustrator with over 30 years experience, and has a solid reputation for consistently exceeding client expectations. He has worked as a museum display artist, exhibit and environmental design artist, muralist, illustrator, graphic artist and designer, web designer, art director, technical illustrator and photographer, in publishing, engineering, manufacturing, art studios and as a freelance artist. He has superior skills using traditional media such as pen, pencil and brush, as well as digital media on both the Mac and PC. He is also absolutely brilliant when it comes to creative conceptualization and vision, and has an exceptional talent for writing ~ see his twitter page @notasparrow.

If you are serious about investing in a creative who possesses stellar artistic ability, with eyes full of passion and wonder, who does absolutely meticulous work and has an insatiable [difficult to restrain] creative work ethic, you need to call him.

He also has an imagination that runs $24/7 \sim \text{you}$ should see his dreams!

Thanks so much for taking the time to check out my work.

Ice storm creates driving nightmares, turns dam project into frozen wonderland

A new day begins with the sun rising over the Ohio river and the Olmsted Dam

Relay for life makes spicy hit ...

Chili contest makes for some spicy moments while raising funds for the 2008 relay for life program. Chili cook off organizer, judge and first place winner Kim McReynolds was speechless upon receiving the award for first place. Second place winner Khourie Hresko long time best friend of Kim had nothing to say. Once again long time favorite Tony Sandor with his hot & spicy mix was unable to make it to the medal platform.

Ice Storm Nightmares

A severe ice storm caused major delays and absentees at the Olmsted Dam site. After warnings provided by

Meagan Bugle from the National Weather Service, employees were given the green light by Tony Sandor to leave early on Monday morning in an attempt to avoid driving during the worst part of the storm. Employees living in areas north of the dam site appeared to be hit the hardest.
